CHAMPIONSHIP GOLF

Travis Wins Chief Honors and Establishes New Record.

THE LONGWOOD TENNIS TOURNEY

George Wrenn Defeats Raymond Little in an Up-Hill Game.

CURRENT SPORTING NEWS

Walter J. Travis and Harry B. Hollins r., and Daniel Chauncey were the respective prize winners in the three silver cup competitions that have occupied the chief attention of the golfers on the Shinnecock Hills (New York) Golf Club links since Tuesday morning.

The victory of Travis was not at all unexpected, but he added so many remarkable features to his triumphal round as to make the victory more memorable than had been looked for. Although he had against him one of the strongest golfers of the younger set, Roderick Terry, jr., he defeated the latter by so high a score as almost to single the new American champion out as in s class by himself.

All of the final rounds were thirty-six All of the final rounds were thirty-six holes, and Travis won by 12 up and 11 to play, making the sensational record of 74 strokes for the eighteen holes in the morning round, and almost repeating it in the afternoon, when he did 76. His total of 150 for thirty-six holes puts the former record of 160, made by Harry Hollins in the tournament last year, completely out. Travis won the chief cup, given by President Samuel L. Parrish, who watched most of the game with the keenest interest, and heartily congratulated the victor on the best amateur golf ever seen on the Shinnecock hills.

heartily congratulated the victor on the best amateur golf ever seen on the Shinne-cock hills.

The other matches were finished in more considerate figures. Young Hollins took the Peconic cup by the silm margin of 2 holes, after a lively tussle with Devereux Emmett, one of the veteran Garden City golfers. Daniel Chauncey, captain of the Dyker Meadow team, won the Consolation cup in 5 up and 3 to play over G. Owen Winston, jr., who has just completed his school days at the Cutler School, and, with Hollins, will enter Harvard in September.

A. De Witt Cochrane added to the sensations by making the seventeenth hole, 214 yards, in 1, although the measurement as noted on the score card is questioned.

J. G. Averell and George C. Clarke, jr., made a best ball record of 74 against Robert C. Watson, this being the best of the numerous impromptu games of the day.

Travis and Terry started out moderately by halving the first three holes. Then, as though having secured a line on the former Yale golfer's strength, the champion let himself out like a young thoroughbred racer, and did not stop until he had won four holes in succession. The fifth hole, 162 yards, he made in 2, from a six-foot put. It has been done in two before during the week, but a more sensational two was to follow. Terry lost by miserable approaching, topping, several shots and falling into the sandy ruts of the road. Both played the ninth hole miserably, halving it in 7, but Travis finished the turn 4 up. He played the tenth badly, giving it up after four strokes, with Terry dead to the hole in 3. It was approximated at six, a liberal allowance, but the fact that it was not played out was universally regretted when the low score at the end of the round was discovered.

score at the end of the round was discovered.

Two halved holes in bogey fours followed, and then Travis raced away from Terry again, rolling up five holes in fast succession. The fourteenth, 381 yards, was made in 3, from a lucky forty-foot put, but a still more providential hole was the sixteenth, 260 yards, which he made in two from a seventy-yard approach. The seventeenth was won in three from a twelve-foot put, and Travis finished the first half, eight holes in the lead.

On the seventh green in the afternoon round the game came to an end, but all the round was played out. Travis beating his record of the morning for the first hine holes by three strokes.

Harry Hollins, after running up the big lead of seven holes in his morning round with D. Emment, had all that he could do to pull out a victory in the afternoon. The first nine holes in the morning ran along evenly enough, the young golfer leading by one. On the incoming holes he advanced more rapidly, playing under bogey and making a race horse spurt after leaving the thirteenth green. Hollins was then 2 up, but he won all of the next five holes, his approaching and putting being admirable.

Beginning the afternoon round Emmett

Beginning the afternoon round Emmett Beginning the afternoon round Emmett showed from the start that his opponent's high lead had not weakened his nerve in the least, and he played a typical bulldog game. The lead of seven was reduced to four on the ninth green, and then Emmett made a brilliant run, winning the tenth, 413 yards, in four from a fifteen-foot put, and the next two in three each, perfect golf. It was Hollins' turn to look anxious, for his lead had dwindled to one, but he held his own and made a glorious three on held his own and made a glorious three on the fourteenth hole, 384 yards. FINE TENNIS PLAY.

The best play of the day was in the morning, when Raymond D. Little, the champion of Princeton, met George L. Wrenn, jr., the ex-champion of Harvard. Little had all the better of the play in the first two sets. In the subsequent sets Little's play fell off and he finally lost.

first two sets. In the subsequent sets Little's play fell off and he finally lost.

In the afternoon the crowd gathered around the exhibition court to see Hackett and Allen, the crack Yale pair, play the Wrenn brothers of Harvard, and a splendid exhibition was the result. The Wrenns put up a good defensive game, but the exchampion had been too long out of tournament competition to keep up with the fast pace the other three set, and he was made the point of attack by the clever Yale players, and many aces were scored through his side of the court. The Wrenns railled in the third set and won it, but their effort was of no use in the fourth, for Hackett and Allen finished up the match in good form by taking the last set 6-4. AMERICAN ASSOCIATION SURE.

J. Earl Wagner Says He Will Be Back In the Game Next Season. A special to the Pittsburg Press from

New York says: There appears to be liftle doubt that ther will be another league, modeled by the plan of the old American Association, in the field next season. During the stay of the Cincinnatis in Philadelphia J. Earl Wagner, one of the former owners of the Washington club, made the declaration that he would be back in base ball next season, but he was not a liberty to say how and where he would

Before the present season opened President Brush told the writer that the National League still controlled the territory in which the four clubs that were dropped be-fore the present season opened were located. League still controlled the territory in which the four clubs that were dropped before the present season epened were located. He further stated that the league had practically completed arrangements by which it would launch a second organization into the game at short notice, and that such a move might be made at any time. Judging by Mr. Wagner's declaration and the readiness with which he discussed the ability of such cities, Chicago and Philadelphia, to support two teams, there is every reason to suppose that the launching will take place at the close of this season, and that when the next year rolls around base ball will be run on the same plan that existed before the Brotherhood war of 1890. The national game has nover been so prosperous as it was at that time, and it may be that old days of prosperity will return.

It is believed that Mr. Brush's present eastern trip has something to do with this matter, and under any circumstances there is little doubt that the scheme will be carried through.

BROOKLYN'S ATTENDANCE.

Not Drawing Enough Money to Pay Taxes and Park Employes' Salaries. Charley Zuber, sporting editor of the Cincinnati Times-Star, is traveling with the Cincinnati club and telegraphs his paper as the Brooklyn club transferring its rer ing games to Washington, although that returns from its next western trip. Several days ago Manager Hanlon was speaking to a member of the Cincinnati team, and during the conversation he remarked that the Brooklyn club might as well close its gates at the Brooklyn grounds, as the attendance was hardly large enough to pay for ground rent and the salaries of the park employes. I know it to be a fact that the Reds played to less than 1,000 people on the first two days of their series there last week, and that the Saturday crowd was not much larger than an ordinary week-day audience in Cincinnati. Perhaps the owners of the Brooklyn club ./ill be game and stick it out to the end of the season, but that kind of gameness, while commendable in a way, shows no business acumen on the part of the owners of the Brooklyn club. During the two seasons that the old Baltimore team the two seasons that the old Baltimore team has been in Brooklyn it has lost money in the games on its home grounds, and to con-tinue to court ruin by keeping such a high-priced team there is about as foolish a thing as could be done.

Base Ball Notes.

A great game at Brooklyn yesterday, and they worked the attendance up to 1.600.

DeMont is once more back at short for Brooklyn, Dahlen being hurt, and is play-Three victories in one week, as a result

Ex-Senators Atherton and Gettman take turns in landing the winning runs. President Ebbitts of the Brooklyn club officially denied yesterday afternoon that he is a candidate for "Uncle Nick" Young's place in the National League. Mercer, but "Win" wouldn't have it. The spectators enjoyed the remarks of the veteran.

Doheney, New York's left-paw twirler, has been farmed out to Chicago of the American League and will be recalled when he gets over the habit of sending batters to first on balls.

Ex-Senator Gus Weyhing was released by St. Louis Thursday in New York. Gus has won two-thirds of his games for the Cardinals, and there are big chances that he will be signed by the New Yorks. With good support the veteran is still a good twirler.

In his six games last week ex-Senator Jack Barry made ten hits, twenty-four times at bat—a percentage of AIT.

Loftus says that he will keep Mertes at shortstop until some better arrangemens could be found. "I can't tell what he can do until he has tried the place for a while. He can't do much worse than the fellows who have been playing there, and his hitting will come in handy."

The record of thirteen runs in one inning made by Boston Thursday was beaten only four times in the history of the National League. Cincinnati made fourteen runs in the first inning against Boston in the ninth inning in 1894; Boston scored sixteen runs in the first inning against Baltimore in 1894, and Chicago scored eighteen runs against Detroit in the seventh inning in 1885.

In the fifth inning of Wednesday's New York game Tom McCreery made one of the most sensational catches ever witnessed. There was a man on base and Elmer Smith banged the ball to the extreme right field. The ball ground is bounded by a wire rope and McCreery nailed the ball with his left hand as it was scaling the ropes. He had to lie back on the rope to get the bail.

"Ball players who love the game and want to see it improve in science and prosperity have the highest admiration for President Johnson of the American League," said Joe Quinn. "There is no man connected with base ball today who is so much discussed and lauded by the players as is Johnson. The better class of players realize that in order that base ball may be successful it is necessary tha

Hahn of the Cincinnatis is generally regarded as the best left-handed pitcher of the league. Of late he has easily done the best pitching of his team. Hahn had a difference with the club with regard to salary at the beginning of the season which he was unable to adjust to his own satisfaction. His work has shown he was justified in his stand and deserved all, and more, too, than he asked for.—Boston

Meekin was released unconditionally, and it is not likely that any one of the clubs in the National League will make the big fellow an offer.

Tod Sloan Seriously Hurt. At the second day's racing of the Liveroool (England) July meeting yesterday the Liverpool cup, of 1,200 sovereigns, a handicap for three-year-olds and upward, at one mile and three furlongs, was won by H. C. White's Skopos, with J. Reiff in the saddle, W. Pateman's Kleon, guided by Righy, was second, and Mr. Fairle's Cutaway was third. Nine horses ran. Cutaway led to the canal turn, where Half-way up the straight Kleon drew to the front, but yielded to Skopos, who won by a head, a length and a half separating the second and third horses. The result was received with icy silence. In the betting Skopos was 9 to 2 against, Kleon 100 to 8 against, and Cutaway 100 to 9 against. When Maluma slipped and fell Sloan was thrown violently to the ground and received injuries on the head that made it necessary to convey him to the hospital. It is thought the fall will end Maluma's racing career, as it put her shoulder out. After the race a complaint of foul riding was lodged with the stewards against Rigby, who was reprimanded and cautioned.

HOW TO ECONOMIZE.

OME men economize so closely on the number of words in a telegram that the receiver cannot understand it. This is not sensible economy. Neither is it sensible economy to ruin garments of value with cheap soap or powerful chemicals that eat into the fabric. True economy uses Ivory Soap in the laundry. It is the most of pure soap that can be sold for the money. Chemically it is as innocent as water. Yet it does everything you can ask of a soap. Try it!
